First Year Students Dine and Dance in Union; Johnny Holmes to Play

Miss Munroe, Col. Morris Will Speak After Supper

At the First Year Dinner Dance tonight, Miss Munro, of the Department of Physical Education will deliver an after-dinner talk to the freshettes, and Colonel Morris will speak to the freshmen. Other guests at the head tables will be Dr. Roscoe on the women's side, and Major Hope and Doug Kerr on the men's. When the dinner is over, there will be dancing in the Ballroom to the music of Johnny Holmes' orchestra.

The dinner will begin at 6.30; the men will eat in the Union Cafeteria, where Stewart Willis, the president of the Students' Society, will officiate, and supper will be served for the women in the Grill-room. Those who are obliged to come late because of harvesting classes, will be readily excused, and will have full opportunity to eat since food will be served for an hour and a half.

At 8.00 p.m. in the Union Ballroom, dancing will commence. The orchestra is that of Johnny Holmes, who has earned himself a reputation for his arrangements of popular music, particularly in the vein of swing. With this band, Bunny Harris is featured as a singer. A brief program will be presented on the dance floor. It will be made up of skits and other turns originated and presented by the first year students themselves, and it is expected that these will prove an entertaining interlude in the midst of the dancing.

Tickets Now on Sale

Tickets are still on sale at 50 cents each, and may be obtained in the Arts Building from Bill Gentleman, or at the Union from the Tuck Shop. Men and women are expected to buy their tickets separately, since they will dine separately in the early part of the evening, and come together later for the dancing.

This dinner dance will constitute the last opportunity afforded to freshmen and freshettes of meeting each other at an event organized particularly for them. Formerly, it has always been the final event of the Freshmen Reception Committee Program, but this year, owing to the break in the continuity of the program caused by the harvesting, it has been decided to make it strictly a first year affair.

Commerce Undergraduates To Hear Dr. Higgins

Students in the School of Commerce will gather at a supper meeting of the Commerce Undergraduate Society to be held on Thursday evening at 6.00 p.m. in the McGill Union Grill Room. The price of admission will be .55 cents per person. Tickets may be bought from class officers and the executive of the Undergraduate Society.

Professor Higgins, who has recently arrived to McGill, will address the meeting on "Post War Reconstruction." Dr. Higgins has just come back from Washington where he was working on some aspect of the post-war problem.

This year the Undergraduate Society is planning to set up some form of bowling league in the School of Commerce. The exact arrangements for this league have not yet been made, since there is some difficulty in finding a time suitable to students taking lectures in the afternoon. Some definite arrangements about this will be made at the luncheon.

Pre-Meds Meet Tomorrow at 5

Selye Will Give Speech and Lab Demonstrations

Dr. Hans Selye of the Histological Department will give a speech and a demonstration to the Pre-Medical Society tomorrow at 5.00 p.m. The Society will meet in Lecture Room B of the Medical Building, where Dr. Selye will give a short talk on the techniques and routine examinations which will later be demonstrated to the group in various laboratories of the Medical Building.

Dr. Selye was born in Vienna and received his university training at the Universities of Paris, Rome, and Prague. He received his M.D. in 1929 at the latter institution. For the next two years he worked as assistant in the Experimental Pathology department of the University of Prague, where he was also in charge of the Histological Laboratory. At the end of this time he was granted his Ph.D. In 1932, on the same Fellowship, Dr. Selye came to the Department of Biochemistry at McGill.

Censorship Is Discussed By Philosophy Society

A discussion was held last night by the Philosophical Society on the subject of "Censorship."

Although an unanimous decision was not arrived at by the group, many as individuals became quite convinced of their own stand. In any case every student present felt that his ideas were much clarified by the discussion and various views presented, according to a member of the executive. Another member of the committee stated that this is the best that can be expected from a discussion, and that the clarification of ideas is of very great importance.

Much of the discussion centered on the views of Plato and John Stuart-Mill.

Tomorrow Last Day for Sale of Banquet Tickets

Engineers Will Hear Austin Wright Friday

Tomorrow has been set for the deadline of ticket sales for the Engineering Banquet, which will be held in the Union at 6.45 p.m. this Friday. The banquet committee feels that it will be impossible to arrange for extra dinners after tomorrow night, and rather than lose money, it will deny tickets to any who are late in buying.

There are now some tickets available from Fred Barton, and from the representatives of each year on the banquet committee and all class presidents. The sales so far are not what was expected, and if the thermometer does not show some movement soon, there will be no refund on the original $1.50.

The floor-show, which is under the direction of Jack Adams, is to be a vast improvement on those of previous years, according to the entertainment board. There will be a Hawaiian danseuse, a soft-shoe specialty act, a comedy act, and a magician, a program which is designed to please every onlooker.

The guest speaker of the evening will be L. Austin Wright, assistant director of National Selective Service, who will discuss the effect of Selective Service on the graduating engineer. He has agreed to answer any questions put to him, by the audience, and the banquet committee hopes that this will solve many of the problems concerning military training, which have been troubling the Engineering students lately.

At present the thermometer is at 65%, which represents about 100 tickets sold. When 150 is reached, there will be a refund of twenty-five cents, and the ribbon will start from zero again on the last lap of the circuit. This will be for 75 tickets, and on the last one being reached, there will be a refund of fifty cents, and the thermometer will register 100% for the second time.

Faculties are Assigned Charity Campaign Quotas

Amalgamated Drive Opens November 23; Closes November 29

The quotas which each faculty will be expected to attain in the McGill Amalgamated Charities Drive have been announced today. The drive will last one week, from November 23 till November 29.

The quotas are as follows:

Royal Victoria College	$ 600
Arts and Science	550
Commerce	100
Engineering	400
Architecture	25
Medicine	300
Dentistry	60
Law	25

The raising of the above quotas will be in the hands of chairmen appointed to head the drive in the various faculties. These will organize a corps of workers, each of whom will be assigned ten or twelve names to cover.

The above figures are based on the standard contribution of one dollar from each student. In all, something over $2,000 will be collected.

The money obtained in the Amalgamated Charities Campaign is divided among the Catholic Charities, the Federated Charities and the Jewish Charities in proportion as there are students of each faith at the University.

The system of uniting these three charities in one was devised a few years ago when it became apparent that three successive drives on the campus were both too much of a tax on the students' pockets, and a severe detraction each from the others. Consequently, the foundation of the McGill Amalgamated Charities Campaign was authorized by the Students' Council.

Deadline Next Week For Arts and Crafts Entries

All entries for the Arts and Crafts Exhibition are now due. They should be handed in to Miss Johannsen's office in the Redpath Museum. Because the exhibition opens on Nov. 30, all Crafts must be in by Nov. 25.

The Exhibition will be open from Nov. 30 to Dec. 12, and it will be held in the Redpath Library. The committee wishes to remind every person connected with the University that they may give in any of the products of their hobbies which are listed in the Arts and Crafts Bulletin.

They also feel that in these troubled times, it is even more important to keep alive among the students and faculty of the University an understanding and love of art, and the capability of doing things with their hands.

Haberl Will Address Electrical Club Today

The Electrical Club will meet today in Room 38 of the Engineering Building at 5.00 p.m. to hear a talk by Mr. H. Haberl of the M.L.H. & P. The subject of his address will be Protective Devices in power systems, with special reference to air blast circuit breakers. The lecture will be illustrated with slides of typical equipment.

Mr. Haberl who is in charge of the relay department of the M.L.H. & P. is particularly well informed on this subject and only recently returned from the west coast where he delivered a similar lecture to the A.I.E.E. there. This will be an excellent opportunity for the members to obtain first hand knowledge of the methods and the equipment used to maintain high continuity of service on modern power systems, stated an executive of the club.

McGill Union Will Hold Tournaments

Plan Ping-Pong And Snooker Competitions

Snooker and Ping-Pong Tournaments are being planned by the Union House Committee, with cash prizes to be given to the winner of each. Lists have been posted in the Union Billiard Room, where all students entering the tournaments are to sign their names. Entry fees of 50 cents for snooker and 25 cents for ping-pong are being charged, but tournament games are played by the entrants free of charge.

The tournaments will begin as soon as sufficient names have been signed to the lists. Information concerning the tournament may be obtained from Bill Dempsey in the Billiard Room, George Foster in the Tuck Shop, or members of the Union House Committee.

These tournaments are an annual feature of the Union, and, according to the House Committee, have resulted in much keen competition, increasing the interest among students in these sports.

Czech Bazaar

A Bazaar and Exhibit of Czechoslovak Handicraft will be held at the Czechoslovak National Hall, 415 St. Catherine St. East, on December 1, 2 and 3, from 1 to 10 p.m., for the benefit of the Czechoslovak Red Cross in Great Britain. Entrance 25c, tea and cookies included. For tickets please phone T. Bauer, AT 6502, or the Physics building.

Chess Club Gathers In McGill Union Tomorrow

The McGill Chess Club will meet tomorrow evening at 8.00 p.m. in the Union Reading Room. All those who are entered in the tournament should play off their first game by the time of the meeting when the result should be reported.

A member of the club executive stated that he wished to stress that novices at chess, as well as experts are welcomed at the club's meetings. He also extended an invitation to any radiolocators who may be interested to attend the meeting.

The club is also planning to hold matches, if possible, and it is expected that there will be at least an Engineering vs. Arts tournament in the near future.

Student Meet To Be Held

Gathering Will Hear Russian Glinka Choir

An international student meeting is being held tomorrow evening at 8.15 p.m. in the McGill Union Ballroom. This gathering, under the sponsorship of the McGill War Council, is being held in order that McGill students will have an opportunity of learning at first hand, the positions of students in other lands, and thus obtain a clearer idea of the significance of the International Student Day. The Russian Glinka Choir will be in attendance and present some Russian songs.

The principal speaker of the evening will be Mlle. Frances, who will address the assembly on the position of students in wartime. Mlle. Frances is a University Women's Fellow in Philosophy and an Assistant in French, and is familiar with the position of students in many lands.

Dale Brown will give an outline of the work of the International Student Service throughout the world. He is the I.S.S. secretary in Canada, and administers the prisoners-of-war relief in this country.

In addition to the two main speakers, there will be a number of short talks outlining the position of students in various countries. Also, there will be a cultural

All arrangements for this dance are now under way, and are in charge of a student committee headed by Mark A. McKeown, a second year student in law. The other members of this committee are Lois Neill, R.V.C.; Bob Watt, Commerce; M. J. Waterman, Dentistry; Mike Rossy, Publicity; Raymond Rose, Council Representative; Lois Cochrane, M.S.P.E.; Allan T. Farmer, Engineering; Barbara Ferguson, Architecture; Peter Patch, Medicine; Lawrence Smith, Arts and Science.

The first campus formal of the year, it is anticipated that a record attendance will be present at this dance. The Air Force Radio Mechanics stationed at McGill are extended a special invitation to attend this dance, stated the chairman of the Prom Committee.

The price of the ticket is $4.00 per couple tax included. This covers a chicken salad supper which will be served at the dance in cabaret style. The tickets will go on sale this coming Monday, and will be sold by Bill Gentleman in the Arts Building; Fred Barton in the Engineering Building; J. W. Marshall in the Medical Building, and in the McGill Union Tuck Shop.

Following the custom set in the past two years, the Junior Prom is again to be held in the gymnasium on Pine avenue. This custom was established two years ago, when, in response to a request made by the Students' Council to confine student social activities on the Campus, it was decided to hold the dance in the Gym. Last year, arrangements were made with the Military authorities to have parades cancelled on the day of the Prom and also the

Scarlet Key Society Votes

Deadline for Nominations Is Announced

Nominations for new members for the Scarlet Key Society are being called for. Those eligible for nomination are undergraduates in good standing, with the exception of partial students those who are on probation, or are repeating their year.

To be accepted, all nominations must reach the Secretary of the Students' Society by 2:30 p.m. on Monday, November 23rd.

Nominations will be divided into two groups, classified A and B, according, in most cases, to the year of the nominee.

All nominees included in the first category must be third year students, except those in the Faculty of Law, who will be in their second year. Four or more nominees must be chosen from the Faculties of Medicine, Engineering, Arts and Science; three or more from the School of Commerce, two or more from Law, and one or more from the Faculties of Architecture and Dentistry.

Each nomination must be signed by ten undergraduates of the Faculty to which the nominee belongs. However, the signature of no undergraduate student may appear on more than four nominations.

Class B will be comprised of second year students nominated from the Faculties of Arts and Science, the School of Commerce, Engineering, Dentistry, and Medicine. Three or more nominees must be chosen from each of these Faculties.

The rules for the signing of these nominations coincide with those applying to Class A, except that in this case, no student must sign more than three nominations.

Elections will be held by all Faculties on December 9th.

Cosmos. to Hear Lindo On West Indies Today

The Cosmopolitan Club will meet again today for their weekly lunch lecture in the Union Grill Room. Mr. Leo Lindo will address the club at 1:30 p.m.

It is expected that he will speak today of the geography and internal interests of the West Indies, particularly Jamaica, his native island.

The secretary, Blanche Lemco, would like to remind all members to bring their membership cards, as anyone unable to show one will be charged five cents admission.

Rodney Mahabir Wins Debating

Student War Effort Is Topic Of Discussion

Rodney Mahabir is this year's winner of the Bovey Shield Contest. Mahabir took the negative viewpoint of, "Resolved That the Student War Effort is adequate to the needs of the present situation." The runner-up was David Schwartzman who also chose the negative argument of the aforesaid resolution. In third place was T. Georges. Miss F. Mercer and D. Rennie tied for fourth place.

"We are now engaged in a struggle for liberty," stated Mahabir. "What are we doing?" he asked. "We are giving up some luxuries, but on the whole, students are quite unaware of the needs of the present situation. As far as military training is concerned, most students are concentrating on their studies rather than on military training." In concluding, he pointed out that, "Students cannot take an active part in peace, if they do not contribute, in some measure, to the war effort."

David Schwartzman, the runner-up, stated that Arts Students are in college a long time and if they are to be satisfactory students, their time is limited. In order to aid the War Effort, he said that salvage ought to be collected to a greater extent, and he stressed the importance of entertaining the troops and raising money to buy comforts for the Armed Forces.

The judges of the contest were Professor d'Hauteserve, Professor Currie, and Professor Gifford of Di-

Col. Hutnik Urges Greater Student Effort in War

Dr. Martin Asks for League of Nations Branch at McGill

Three hundred students met in Moyse Hall yesterday to join other universities throughout the world in the observance of November 17 as the International Day of Students. The assembly was addressed by Col. Hutnik, Chief of the Czechoslovak Mission to Canada. The speaker described the history of Czechoslovak education and culture and its centuries old struggle against the German 'Drang Nach Osten'.

The massacre of Czechoslovak students in 1939 he said were only a part of this struggle and were a natural outcome of the German program of annihilating all centres of culture and education in the occupied countries. During the twenty years of independence Czechoslovakia made great strides forward in all fields of government, education and social progress, the speaker said, and was fully prepared to defend herself without compromising with the aggressors. She had been, however, outmanoeuvered and rendered defenceless in the defeat of world diplomacy at Munich in 1938. Despite this, the people continue to resist both at home and by their army abroad. Foremost in this resistance are the students and educated classes, against whom the Germans have directed their most vicious attacks.

Although he had witnessed the student massacres in Praha, Col. Hutnik did not describe them in detail but urged the meeting to draw inspiration from the example

Science Club Hears Thompson

Coeds Addressed On Nutrition During Wartime

The third meeting of the Women's Science Club was held yesterday in the R.V.C. Common Room. Dr. Thompson of the Biochemistry Dept., was the guest speaker.

The President opened the meeting by welcoming the guests, and explaining that hereafter lists would be posted in the Arts, Chemistry, and Biology buildings before each meeting. Any student expecting to come must sign these lists, as the executive must know how much food to order.

The subject of Dr. Thompson's address was "Nutrition, the Government and the People." He began by tracing the living habits of our earliest ancestors up until the present day. He showed how emphasis on the nutritive value of food showed itself particularly after the Great War, so that during this war we are better equipped to feed a large population, both military and civilian, with the maximum benefit on the minimum quantity of food. He also compared the different attitudes of the British and Canadian Governments to the food situation. In Britain the accent is on the nutritive value, and in Canada it is on the economic value. Until every government, he said, concerned itself with the welfare of its own people, rather than the welfare of big business, we would not have true civilization.

They Dine and Dance

The decision of the Freshmen reception Committee to hold the annual Dinner Dance this year in spite of the delay caused by the harvesting project is certainly to be commended. The Freshmen class never did have the opportunity to be introduced to each other in an informal manner, and it is befitting that the climax of the reception should serve to complete a worthy beginning.

Most Freshmen this year will find themselves after a month of college somewhat burdened with academic work, while others will find themselves quite involved in extra-curricular activities. This Dinner Dance is a befitting time to take stock as it were of conditions; to see if they can attain a happy medium of academics and extracurriculars.

The state of complete dissociation from society at the university is to be deplored, but what is much worse is dissociation from books. A well formed college existence consists of first and foremost a reasonably high academic standard achieved and maintained, a reasonable measure of social pursuits and finally a realization that while at the university in wartime, they have certain responsibilities to themselves and their country.

The dinner dance in past years has proved itself to be the most enjoyable function for the Freshman class and has been attended, and in spite of its tardiness this year, it is the duty of every first year student to attend.

Letter Forum

We reiterate below the Managing Board's policy with regard to the letter forum column.

All letters must be signed in ink by the writer though anonymity will be respected if requested.

Letters may deal with any subject whatsoever provided they are not

1) Libelous
2) obscene
3) contrary to the defense of Canada regulations.

Moreover the Daily does not withhold any letters that conform to these provisions, but have on several occasions withheld letters which were signed with a pseudonym only, that were libellous, or obscene, or contrary to the defense of Canada regulations.

Several people have requested that the Daily take part in political discussions of various natures, that students were vitally interested in the war from all points of view. There are two reasons why this is not possible in the editorial column. First it is against the constitution of the Daily from which we quote ". . .'In the editorial column, the managing board shall be free to express whatever opinions it holds, save that no editorial shall treat of a religious or political question in a partisan way, . . ."

Secondly there are much more qualified individuals than we who express views on matters political in the metropolitan newspapers. However the letter forum column is open to students who wish to indulge in comments and we hope that students will contribute to the column in a sincere effort to clarify certain issues and not with the idea of merely criticising for the sake of criticism. It is to be understood that this is not a departure from the Daily policy in the past but merely a clarification of a question that had not previously been completely understood.

The Rake's Progress

By Mulligan

The Owl — Drafted

"Yes", said the Owl.

"Non", disagreed his opponent, vociferously.

"Ah, but you are in error, my good fellow", pleaded the Owl, soothingly. "These Mexican gold-mine certificates are worth fabulous sums anywhere. It just so happens I have no money with me,—only these priceless securities. Here, my good man, take one and keep the $48.40 change. Rich, ah, rich!" (sigh and gesture).

"De fare, she is still un dollar soixty", scowled the other.

"Ahem-m", coughed the Owl, nervously. "You would not then spurn such generosity for a trifling dollar-sixty! (looking anxiously at the meter again to make sure). "Here are my solid gold 28 carat, mind you—cufflinks as security", he preferred magnanimously, fumbling with his sleeves. "I shall let your company know at my earliest convenience of the indignity a person of my wealth and position has been subjected to, for the mere piffle. A dollar sixty! bah! haughtily).

"Dat be ho-kay wit' me", grinned the taxi-driver, taking the cufflinks. "Dat his good bargain. 'Ey!', wot is dis!" Unfortunately, a chunk of the "28 carat" flaked off, leaving the tin underneath exposed.

"Oh, how confusing", gargled the Owl, unhappily. "It must be my cheap pair. I oh, why, there is my Uncle Charles over there" (spotting the hapless Dean of Engineering, alighting from his car further up the street). "I'll get him to square matters with you right away!" (running over to Dean Whiffletree, waving frantically).

"Why, ah, uh, yes, Longwhistle?" asked the Dean, surprised. "What is the matter, boy?"

"S-s-sir" wailed the Owl, dabbing a hanky in the corner of his eye and sopping up the crocodiles, "th-that man" (pointing to the taxi-driver) "tells me the w-world is-is flat, and WON'T believe me when I say it isn't! Oh boo-hoo-hoo-oo" (inarticulate sob).

This was too much for the good Dean. "There, there, Longwhistle', he consoled, patting the Owl's head, "never mind. I'll convince this ignoramus for you. Now you go home and just forget this unpleasant incident".

"Hum", mused the Dean, as the Owl disappeared like a hound in full cry over the horizon. "I wonder why he is in such a hurry ?"

The Owl and a certain Lazarus were busy discussing their rare times student-harvesting out West. Lazarus was beefing about the pay he got peddling shoe laces and loud neckties instead in Regina; and the Owl was crabbing about the money he lost in the 3-day crap-game on the train coming East.

Suddenly, a harsh voice wafted its noisy accents across the campus, jarring the Owl's sensitive ear. "'Assuredly!" (it barked) "we shall weed out all desirables from our faculty and have them drafted. All slackers: all bums; all good-for-nothings: all slackerss; all bums; boys; all nit-wits; all dumbos . . ."

"Heavens" interrupted another voice, "there won't be anybody left!"

"True", agreed the first voice, nastily. "But we can make a fine start. There is a certain . . .'

"Yes", interrupted the second fervently (the Owl recognizing it as belonging to Dean Whiffletree) "I think there is no doubt . . ."

"Um. Longwhistle. Oglethorpe W. Longwhistle". (Cries of "hear! hear!" "Yea!" "Throw him out!") "This young man is typical of the no-good element cluttering up our engineering department', continued the voice of judgment." 'Good riddance to bad rubbish', I always say"!

"But", interrupted somebody, "the lad is a genius in the field of alcoholics. . ." (the Owl brightened).

More cries "Oust him!" "Rusticate him!" "Kick him out!" and general hub-bub within. The Owl turned away, crestfallen. Lazarus attempted some feeble humour, and got smitten on the ear for his troubles. Eight happy freshmen years flew before the Owl's tear-filled eyes, as he slouched away, sick at heart; and a fat tear quivered moistly on the end of his mighty proboscis.

Whistling merrily, the Owl clomped down the little street of Notre Dame de Sacre Bleu, Est, in the heart of Montreal's business world, looking for the stately frescoes of the Bonzo Building, divisional H.Q. for Le Regiment Royal de La Stenographie, which sounded like a safe bet for the Owl, who was not very keen on active service of any sort. "Haw", he chortled, as he stalked into the building, "anything for the defence of dear old Quebec, but not a step farther. I should be a general in a week in a bunch like these!"

"Est-ce que vous parlez Français?", inquired the recruiting officer politely. "Vous connaissez une régiment canadien, mon ami".

"Eh? what!" cried the Owl, mistaking the officer's smile for the old "some other time" gag, and of course not understanding a word. "Vous même allez-vous dam' au 'elle, toi" (with some more guttersnipical embellishments of a highly uncomplimentary nature). "Je veux être général, toot sweet beentoe!" Three husky S.P.'s ably assisted his departure, with three steel-capped boots in full swing; and the Owl sailed out of the door, to land on the curb with an ear-shattering thump.

"Yes", agreed the three members of the Owl's draft board, beholding their forlorn quarry arise and dust himself off. "Undoubtedly a fine physical specimen—a real Commando build!"

"And did you see", continued another, "the way he landed on that paving-stone? A born paratrooper, indeed; hardly a scratch on him!"

"Frightening face, too. Enough to give the Nazis the heeby-jeebies if he ever popped out and said "Boo!". My fine young fellow" (unwinding a long and bony leg from the fender of a parked car and helping the battered Owl to his feet), "We, your draft board, are making every effort to see that you are properly placed in our great Canadian army. Mr. Cork here has some suggestions as to which regiment would be delighted to have you".

"Yes, my dear Pork," replied Cork, "the Bricklayers' Brigade from Brandon would be admirable!"

"Ah, no", interrupted Mr. Stork, the third member. "The Coal-heavers Corps from Caughnawauga".

"Nay!" said Cork to Pork and Stork both, with gusto. "The Grave-diggers Guards, from Guelph!"

"The Longshoremen's Light Infantry from L'Assomption", reiterated Stork vehemently.

The Doorkeepers' Dragoons from Drummondville", cried Pork.

At the mention of the Three River's Tank Corps, the Owl started to flee, but the three gentlemen grabbed his coat-tails. "Longwhistle", they solemnly announced, "we have decided to put you into that famous Montreal outfit, the Griffintown Grenadiers, noted for their brilliant Commando toughness, and their low I. Q. This makes them excellent shock-troops; and we feel, personally, a whole platoon could take shelter behind a body like yours in an emergency".

"Body!?" wailed the Owl, unhappily. "Bawww! Let me go!" (sob) "I wanna go home . . !"

"Should we really mention it?" asked Stork, dubiously. "You know, Oglethorpe, they do drink a great deal . . ."

"It's shocking the way they drink", added Pork.

"And dreadful the stuff they drink", piped up Cork.

"Ah, said the Owl, licking his lips and assuming a martyr-like expression. "I care not how wicked my comrades be. I go to fight for freedom, gentlemen, under the colours of the Griffintown Grenadiers!"

"Well", demanded the Owl, pushing aside the other timid-looking and frightened draftees, "where is it?"

"Where is what!" snorted the N.C.O., somewhere through the smoke and thick fumes. Then, toughly, "Who arsked you ter open yer trap anyhow!"

"Now see here", argued the Owl, blissfully unaware he was taking his life in his hands. "Nobody's going to do me out of my rights. You've given me this rotten-fitting booby-suit and a pair of sailboats you've the nerve to call "boots"; and then stand there and neglect to give me my whisky ration. Come, come, now, my good fellow. I am not one for waiting. Where is it?"

"Wh-wh-wh", warbled the harsh howl of the N.C.O., choking. "D-did I hear right?"

"Yes", snapped the Owl, impatiently wiggling a parched tonsil. "Quit stalling and give uncle his baby-tonic!"

The mighty frame of Sergeant Nero McBlood arose like the wrath of the Almighty and lurched through the foul fog to plant itself in front of the Owl, arms akimbo; and the light of recognition glaring in each eye. "It it ain't Joe College!", he cackled. "Now what were yer crying fer, dearie? Dis iss most amusing;—in fact, it's goner be tragic".

"Ulp", gobbled the Owl, retreating hastily. "Now—now nothing rash, old man. I—I merely understood. . . ."

"Ha!", roared McBlood, bristling. "You understood, heh? R-r-rrr! In dis regiment you do not understand, you know!! Three hours extra pack-drill, Private Longwhistle, for such ignorance! Whiskey ration!! Haw, haw, haw!" And as the ugly chuckling diminished in the distance, the Owl stuck his tongue out and made a nasty noice; at the same time racking his wily mind for ways of revenge.

(Next week's thrilling instalment—The Owl, Commando!)

Nothing's Plenty

by Fabia Campi

Since tonight is the last bang-up affair for freshettes and freshmen, we thought you'd be interested in a few facts we gained from experience during our fresh informal. Primum: Do not wear a sweater and skirt. The affair is a formally informal one. We remember that we almost made the faux pas ourselves when, happily, a senior warned us in advance and we were able to dash home and change. The affair calls for a dress, the more feminine the better, and it definitely calls for stockings and pumps. Secundum, in case you're thinking that all this beauty is going to go to waste on a bunch of green freshmen, we're going to pass on another fact gained from experience . . . unless the upperclassman of today has radically changed from the upperclassmen of our day, he'll be there "en masse" . . . and, another fact learned the hard way, he isn't green. Never mind, freshmen, you'll be upperclassmen yourselves soon and then you can do the same thing.

Stocking Facts

Here's a warning to coeds, who are buying "silk" stockings from now on, that they will do well to heed. All the so-called "silk" stockings being sold now are made of rayon, and they require special care in washing and drying. Rayons should be dried from twenty-four to forty-eight hours before wearing. The reason for this is that rayon threads are very tender when they are wet, and they have little elasticity. In other words, the threads do not stretch but break. So all of you who have been accustomed to rinsing your stockings out at night and putting them on the next day had better change your budget to include two pair of stockings... and as for you lucky gals who have become used to the luxury of rinsing nylons out an hour before wearing them, all we can say is, to repeat what the conscientious mother said before sending her little daughter into the deep dark jungle of snakes and wolves, . . . "Watch your step, darling."

To Keep You From Kicking

Very soon civvies are going to have less and less wherewithal to kick with, we learned over the week-end, for the styles, materials and colours of civilian footwear are being cut drastically. Roughly, you can grasp the magnitude of this cut when we tell you that 80% of the footwear manufactured is going to the government for the armed forces and 20% to civilians. Not only that, but new regulations, which have just been released in the U.S.A. and which we can expect any time now in Canada, state:

1) No decorative stitching.
2) No metal nailheads for studs or any metal decorative purposes.
3) No leather bows except those made from pieces of scrap too small in area to obtain therefrom a vamp or quarter.
4) No wing or long shield tip (This especially applies to brogues where it is the wing tip that makes the brogue. All you can expect is that the perforation will be done directly on the leather without the customary overlapping of material.)
5) No woven leather vamps or quarters.
6) Only six colours of leather to be used and no coloured play shoes.

All that certainly is enough to make you sit up and take notice. And another thing.—We would suggest that all of you who need overshoes for this winter buy them very soon, because at the moment the stores are selling last year's stock and last year's overshoe contains 50% more rubber than this year's. In addition to this, we have some pretty reliable information that after December 31st, there will be only one style of overshoe (with different size heels) made. We are fighting a war and fashion fads are not going to waste materials necessary to winning it. But having seen the way designers have used original taste and intelligence to bring us attractiveness in the dress field while complying with cloth restrictions, we can rest assured that the same thing will happen in footwear . . . Anyhow you don't mind wearing the same style shoe as everybody else has to wear as long as you know it's for a good cause, and only for a short while.

You Can Always Be Worse Off

And if you think you're hard up for clothes and "simply haven't a thing to wear" think of the "poor benighted Hindoo." What! You've never heard of him? Here's his story.

"The poor benighted Hindoo,
He does the best he kindoo;
He sticks to caste
From first to last;
For clothes he makes his skindoo."

Praise—For Once.

The Editor, McGill Daily.

Sir,—May I congratulate you on what I consider an impressive and dignified issue of the Daily on the occasion of International Students Day. For a long time we have waited for leadership on part of the Daily outside the questions on whether we should attend a freshmen's smoker or not. In the last few days the Daily has shown us that, while we still enjoy the privilege of pursuing our studies, we also have responsibilities beyond the sphere of campus affairs and even the most violent attack of that McGill disease, student apathy, should have been cured by the example of the valiant stand of our Czech fellow students against Nazi barbarism.

Col. Hutnik gave us a most moving picture of the events of Nov. 17th, 1939, as a symbol of the sufferings of the Universities under Fascist domination. Thousands of Czech students braved the armed might of the Nazi conqueror and marched against the machine guns of the Nazi hordes. There are over 3,000 students at McGill, but Moyse Hall was a sorry sight—barely 250 thought it worthwhile to express their unity and solidarity with those who have given their lives for freedom, a freedom which they lost and we enjoy at a University where no machine guns are posted to prevent us from expressing our thoughts.

I understand that a meeting, organized by various Clubs for the students interested in United Nations' student solidarity will feature the various groups on Thursday night. Is this going to be another gathering of a few or will the campus recognize that it is possible to wake up to our responsibilities without the prodding of fascist bayonets?

Mr. Editor, this state of affairs shows where your responsibility lies. Keep up the standard of such editorials as today's and McGill will not fall behind. Karel Poltava calls us his fellow students—let us be worthy of that name.

Yours truly,
Werner Schott (B.A. 3)
Ronald Mercer (B.A. 4)

The Editor, McGill Daily,

Dear Sir,

I would like to congratulate the Editorial Board of the McGill Daily on the issue of the Daily that was put out to commemorate International Student Day. I am sure that, in great measure, this issue will serve to bring the realization of the full significance of the occasion to McGill students.

Let us hope that large scale gestures such as these, which portray the true anti-Nazi spirit which is welling up in the minds of Canadian university students, will serve to spur the student body to take such actions as will enable them to cast their full weight into the struggle against Hitlerism.

From rallies such as the International Student Assembly, and the International Youth Congress which met in London early this week, have come forward calls for united action and mobilization of all our resources with the watchword: "Forward for your future, unite, fight, attack, win."

As pointed out in Tuesday's editorial, students everywhere have been in the forefront of the fight for freedom and today continue that fight by doing everything in their power to fully mobilize their own sphere of activity—the university.

Over a Hundred Skiers at First Outing Club Meeting

See Colour Movies Of Slalom, Racing, Rock-climbing

By T. B.

Over a hundred people attended the first gathering of the McGill Outing Club last night and 63 paid their dollar and made it official. President Reed Hyde opened the meeting and expressed agreeable surprise at the huge turnout. However, he noted the small ratio of coed enthusiasm and hoped that it would increase during the season.

Jim Thackeray, racing manager, then told skiers that the Club was already in touch with Mont Tremblant and Dartmouth authorities about the possibility of a McGill-Dartmouth meet. He told would-be racers that they must be members of the M.O.C. to compete in any outside meets (i.e., to get their zone cards).

TRIPS PLANNED

Plans for the club's main activity were broached by Harold Asselstine, in charge of Trips and Tours. He explained that the key note of this season's cross-country skiing would be variety. "Last year," he said, "we staged two or three short runs especially for beginners. These were so successful that we plan to have several of these four mile tours. By contrast, a four-day expedition is projected and at least two which will run overnight. Formerly, the same happy band went North each Sunday — this year, there will be something for everybody. In the Spring bicycle trips will be organized to take your mind off exams."

Rock climbing came in for frivolous treatment from Johnny Brett, who said, pointing, that it was "like going up that wall over there without the lamp brackets to hang on to. "However," he continued, "we soon go up and down as simply as on St. Catherine street. But you wait much longer for a street car" he added.

Then Mr. Van Wagner mentioned the success of the instruction periods which Fred Urquhart conducted last year. He said that they would be repeated, probably at five p.m. in the gym and on the Mountain. Commenting on the fine recovery that the M.O.C. made after losing almost all its active members a year ago, he pointed to the curtailment of inter-collegiate skiing as one reason for the increased interest in cross country skiing. As for those who find going North too expensive in time and money, he advised them to try one Sunday spent skiing instead of a week-end spent in the Red Room.

Reed Hyde drew attention to the M.O.C. placards which dot the campus and called for skiing pictures which could be enlarged and used as Club propaganda.

FILMS SHOWN.

The colour films were all that had been expected. Some of the slalom pictures were enough to discourage any beginners, but when, just at the end, one man wrapped himself around three poles they felt a little better. Some glorious shots of Laurentian blues in sky and shadow and sunsets in purple and orange were shown. Skiing on Baldy after a light snowfall had the veterans in the audience with that far-away skiers' look in their eyes. The rock-climbing sequences showed one especially fine shot of a climber negotiating a chimney against a background of Laurentian fall colours a hundred feet below.

With such a large initial enrolment, the McGill Outing Club looks forward to its best season ever. If the snow nymphs share in the general enthusiasm it will be a great winter.

Gymnasts to Practice This Afternoon

M.I.T. Asks for A Return Match During the Winter

The Gymnastics activities this year have gotten off to a flying start, and a large number of freshmen have been turning out regularly. The next practice is today at 5 o'clock in the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium.

Last year a gymnastic team came to McGill from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. A meet was held between them and our team, and it was hotly contested, with McGill finishing only one point behind the opposing team. They have written to Coach Em Orlick this year, requesting a return meet, to be held sometime this winter.

FOUR STARS GONE.

Meanwhile, owing to the war, we have lost four of our best gymnasts—John Foster; Ross Johnson; John Simpson; and Bill Weber. Therefore, if we wish to field a team strong enough to beat M.I.T., we must fill the places left vacant by the absence of these men.

It is stressed that previous experience is not necessary to take part in the gymnastics. Whether they have participated in gymnastics before, or not, students are invited to come to the practices and learn. All that is required is regular attendance.

If they would like to talk it over before starting, they can contact Em Orlick, PL. 4488; Guy Grimaldi, Com. III, WI. 4938; or Bob Kovacs, Eng. I, HA. 5302.

Red Hoopsters Oppose Air Force Cagers Friday

Collegians Out for First Win in Initial Service League Game

The debut of the McGill hoopsters in the Service Basketball League will take place this Friday night at the Arthur Currie Gymnasium when they face a team from the Lachine Manning Depot. The Air Force squad has already overwhelmed a team from the Longue Point Ordinance Corps and they are out to repeat their first victory.

The collegians who form the Red team are mostly products of the intramural league and will be out to start the season right by a victory over the strong Air Force squad. The team will be centred about Ned Mahon, the only veteran on the squad, having played for the McGill junior hoopsters during their last year of intercollegiate competition.

FIGHTING TEAM.

The remaining nine men who will round out the squad are Evans, Eastwood, Murray, Rosensvieg, Shacter, Zalkand, Kaneb, MacRae and Deacon. Coach Van Wagner stated that he doesn't expect the team to take the championship this year but he thinks that they will win their share of games.

Last night the Montreal Senior Basketball League held a meeting and from all outward appearances this looks like a banner year for the senior cage squads of the city. At the last count it appears that the league this year will be composed of four civilian teams, McGill, Sir George Williams, plus the remnants of the Pats and Oilers, who will be playing under different colours this year. In addition there will be two Air Force teams, one from the Lachine Depot and the other from the No. 13 flying school at St. Hubert.

McGILL STRONG

In this league the McGill entry shapes up as the most powerful team in the league as it will start all of year's senior hoopsters, including Dave Holdredge, McGill's leading scorer, of past teams. The entry from St. Hubert will possibly give the collegians their strongest battle, boasting a team that includes many players from the U.S. and some of the players of former M.B.L. teams.

In addition to Holdredge, the Red and White will have Ron Wilson, the star of last year's Eastern Canadian champions, plus such steady performers as Delbel, Munroe and Robinson. Thus from all outward appearances this looks to be one of the best years for the college which was the home for many seasons of the founder of the game of the peach baskets.

An answer to the question of how many books the average liberal arts student draws from the college library during his four-year course is made available by a two-year statistical study just completed by Dr. Lewis F. Steig, Hamilton college librarian.

That answer—for Hamilton—is 78 books, of which 10 are drawn out as a freshman, 16 as a sophomore, 24 as a junior, and 28 as a senior.

Then there was the Engineer (Freshie, of course) who started out in Chem. lab. to prove he was a plant (a pansy?) and not an animal. He got as far as proving that he exhaled oxygen, but where does that get you; in the end?

Sergeant: Now, suppose you are on your post one dark night. Suddenly a person appears from behind and wraps two arms around you. What will you call then?

Doughboy: Let's go, honey.

This columnist has been on leave of absence (or did anyone notice). Being a loyal subject of His Majesty, it was decided that the writer's talents would be best abused, on Canada's far western coastline, where the skies are balmy, the seas are rough, and the people retired. So His Majesty removed His Majesty's loyal and true subject,—the author (ex-author)—some 6 months past from the stately confines of James McGill's intellectual vineyards, and rushed him to a beautiful training establishment run, at great expense (to its inmates) by His Majesty's Navy.

Being mindful of sport—including the purely masculine variety—your travelling correspondent watched with no small delight, the flourishing sporting scene on Canada's West Coast. Truely they are makers of champions. Take lacrosse—Canada's national game (which has lost its national importance) —The New Westminster Salmonbellies have been Canada's perennial champs. Take basketball—no eastern team has been able to match Victoria's vaunted squads, with only one occasional interruption in this monotony by the Windsor Fords. Track and field stars are thick as weeds, i.e. real stars, such as Percy Williams. In boxing, Vancouver has had more than one world champion.

The far west is a sporting place, and the fans are loyal. There, sports are different—more like those of good old England. In summer,—cricket, baseball, tennis, polo and riding are popular. In winter—English rugby and soccer, with basketball and hockey growing in importance.

More people enter actively into the games, Old boys, grey and hobbling, yet sure of shot, may be seen on Victoria's tennis courts competing with the younger fry. Indoor sports such as table tennis are popular as well. (incidentally, all the Victoria girls cultivate an English accent.

The climate—well—we don't talk about that—but home was never like it.

McGill men are all over the west —recent and ancient graduates. Even the Victoria College crest carries the McGill martlets.

OCTOBER

The air is cool and crisp this Autumn morn,
With wisps of leafy smoke from fires unfurled;
In whirling masses, twigs and leaves are tossed,
And with abandon, in the breezes hurled.

The scarlet leaves, now dropping from the trees,
Can scarce, 'gainst forceful wintry winds, hold fast;
The ancient elm, bereaved of summer's cloak,
Its sturdy strength opposes to the blast.

Forewarned of Winter's rage, the birds and beasts
Form careful plans, while Autumn yet is nigh;
The skillful squirrel sets in a season's store,
And robins, fast, to gentler climates fly.

October goes—and Winter's forces stand
Supremely set o'er Nature's vast domain;
The earth, once more, is cloaked in veil of snow,
And feels the grip of hoary frost again.

Reds Face Farquharson's Navy Sextet on Friday

Six Players Tie in NDHL Scoring Lead

Bud Farmer Among Leaders With Three Points

The National Defence Hockey League has issued the first point-scoring standing of the current season. After only one evening's competition, the highest individual mark is three points, and there are many players with equal records.

The Navy got off to a fast start and took the lion's share of the scoring, with six men in the first ten. Read, Buchannan and Alberts are tied with the leaders, while Bud Farmer of McGill, Hermie Gruhn and Eddie Emberg of the Air Force, have also, not too surprisingly, garnered the highest number of points. Eagan and Poulton, of the Navy, and Emberg of the Air Force, with two goals apiece, are tops in that department.

MULLINS BADMAN

The bad man of the league, is Ray Mullins, who served six minutes in the jug Friday night, and Bruce Crutchfield, who got into a fracas with him, is running a close second, with five minutes, representing one major penalty.

An Irishman, an American and a Jew were having a good old international squabble. "Well," said the American, "I'm sending my son to Harvard this winter." The Jew said, "What good does that do him?" The Irishman then upped and said, "Why, he can become Archbishop of Dublin." The Jew replied, "That's nothing." The Irishman, slightly piqued, responded, "Then he can become Archbishop of Canterbury." The Jew said nothing, so the Irishman went on, "And then he can become Pope." The Jew shrugged his shoulders, so the Irishman said, "What would you like to become, Jesus Christ?" The Jew laconically replied, "One of our boys did it."

Victor to Gain Sole Possession Of First Place

Having leapfrogged the Air Force in no uncertain style last Friday night, the Red pucksters face another more crucial test in their second appearance this Friday night, against Hughie Farquharson's Navy sextet with whom they are tied for first place. The general concensus of opinion is that the boys in blue are the team to beat in the defence loop, and judging by their fast and tricky play in their first victory over the Army, the game promises to be a closely fought battle.

The strong, defensive play of the Redmen will stand them in good stead in this tussle against the Navy sharpshooters, who don't boast the weight of the Air Force squad. Ritchie, Ward and Owen withstood as severe a test as they come, in facing the power plays of the high-stepping Flyers, and came through with flying colors. This is one department in which the McGill squad is solid.

NAVY HIGH IN SCORING

Up front, the sailors may have a slight advantage. They have three well-balanced lines, and six of their sharpshooters are placed in the top ten of the scoring list, issued after the first night of competition in the N.D.H.L. Read and Buchanan are tied with Bud Farmer for the lead, and together with their line-mate Browne, have accounted for two goals and a total of six scoring points. They are a very fast unit, and are good backcheckers. On the defence they do have two experienced men in Bob MacFarlane and Andy Anton, who is well-known to McGill followers.

The Redmen showed considerable scoring punch in their first encounter, well-distributed over the entire team, and their passing plays should improve as time goes on, and they readjust themselves to league competition. Bud Farmer is tied for the scoring leadership, while his linemate, John Costigan is in the first ten. Dick Lockwood showed great promise, and Tommy Hale played a fine game. The whole team showed fight, and they will be right in the thick of the battle for first place.

Friday's game will again be the nightcap of a doubleheader, with the Air Force and Army tangling in the curtain-raiser starting at eight o'clock. At the present moment the manner in which Dr. Bobby Bell's squad will line up is somewhat indefinite, as he tried several combinations in the first game, but he may return to the originally planned forward combinations.

BOXING

Coach Tommy Parr will conduct boxing classes in the B. W. & F. room every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon at 5.15 p.m.

"Asparagus"

ASPARAGUS . . . Iron rails fixed vertically in the ground as a barrier for tanks.

You will probably run into a lot of "asparagus" when you enter the world of business . . . temporary barriers in your march to eventual success. One such barrier is carelessness in handling money. A sure way to avoid it is to acquire thrifty habits when you are at college.

Have you any words or expressions to add to our War Slanguage Dictionary? If you have, please send them to the Advertising Dept., The Royal Bank of Canada, Head Office, Montreal.

It is to be hoped that students will make constructive progress in that direction by taking steps to urge the authorities to speed up all courses, to provide a rigorous, efficient, selective service scheme, and to allow all such changes to be as effective as possible through close co-operation between university students, staff, and government authorities.

Yours truly,
M. Fainstat, Eng. 44.

"Editor." McGill "Daily":
Dear "Sir":—

Bouquets of stinkweed to you for the "wonderful" job you are doing with the "Daily" this year! And, mind you, my opinion is not that of an isolated individual but of a surprisingly (to you) large group of students at McGill.

The only items I've glanced at in the "Daily" for the past month are the letter forum, the exchange features and the jokes. And lately, the last two have been wanting all too often — robbing you of your only legitimate claim to publication.

Take, for instance, the movie reviews. At least one half of the feature page is filled almost every day with these totally unnecessary items, which shows what an undue stress the editorial board lays on this medium, a medium which much too oft has served a mass opiate and a source of false impressions. If you must, review only the truly good movies. For a change, let the movie reviewers write some book reviews, and not only on current books.

Then, your new feature "Paddy" really gets me "sore." What sort of an ignominious jerk (the word's been used on the radio and it tells a darn sight more than some "Daily" features) this fellow T.N.T. is, who has the temerity to imitate Mulligan's fairly decent humour, is beyond my comprehension. Bring back the Owl!

And your sanctimonious and silly editorials, cp. those on Thanksgiving Day, and the flags in the grill-room (your excuse for that one was certainly pretty flimsy).

Now, Mr. Editor, have the patience to listen to a constructive suggestion on my part: If you can't give us a half-decent issue every day, give us two good issues a week and turn over the money saved to, say the I.S.S. I'm sure the editor of the Manitoban refrained from more scathing criticism than that reported last Friday by R.R.M. out of politeness. It's about time you removed your cloak of false impartiality and threw open the pages of the "Daily" for discussion of a subject which interests students—and every person—most these days, namely the causes, effects and conduct of the war both at home and abroad, and the peace to come.

I sincerely hope that you'll have the courage to print this epistle, but I'm almost willing to bet that you won't.

Yours disgustedly,
H. C. F. SHATAN.

Col. Hutnik Urges Greater Student Effort in War

given by these martyred students in order that we might increase our efforts and work more intensively for the defeat of the forces of barbarism and jungle law. He declared that students throughout the world must unite and recognize their responsibilities toward the community in order to prevent the recurrence of such world disasters as we are passing through today.

Stewart Willis, the President of the Students' Executive Council presided at the meeting and explained its significance. The speaker was introduced by a student and thanked by Dr. C. P. Martin, Professor of Anatomy at McGill. Dr. Martin declared that it was not enough to honour the martyred students of the occupied countries, but that we should act and prepare ourselves for our future responsibilities by familiarizing ourselves with the problems of this world. For this purpose he advocated the formation of a McGill Branch of the League of Nations Society. Dr. Martin showed that if the new generation does not impress on the governments the necessity of Collective Security through some form of a League of Nations, there would be another catastrophy within thirty years after the end of this year. An organizational meeting of a League of Nations Society Branch is expected to be held sometime next week.

Junior Prom to Take Place Next Month

following day. This year it is expected that similar arrangements can be made with the C.O.T.C. officers and thus eliminate any possibilities of conflicts with parades.

Many of the social activities around the campus have been curtailed because of the war. The Junior Prom, however, is one of the few events to remain with us. In view of the fact that a large demand for tickets is anticipated and that last year there was an early sell-out of tickets before the dance, this year's Prom Committee is making efforts to accomodate at least fifty more couples than last year.

The Architects are in charge of all decorations for this dance. Barbara Ferguson heads a committee on this phase of the work.

It has been stressed by those in charge that the need for giving to help to maintain the door is even greater in time of war than in time of peace, since the Government, overburdened with heavy expenditures, has withdrawn many of its charity grants, and the authorities of this city have turned over the whole matter to these three charities.

side of the program, featuring such items as songs and music characteristic of the countries concerned.

Dr. Leblond, Lecturer in Anatomy, will outline the position of students in France, while an address will be given on the status of students in Germany. Tom Pavlasek will tell of Czech students, Margaret Yuen will speak of students in China, and Chris Bartley will elucidate the position of students in Britain.

The meeting is being arranged by a committee formed by members of the Cosmopolitan Club, the S.C.M., the I.V.C.F., the B.W.I. Society, the Maccabean Circle, and the Student Labour Club. This group felt that a meeting such as is arranged should be held to make the observance of the International Student Day seem more vital to McGill Students.

The Russian Glinka Choir, of 35 voices, will be present at the meeting, and will give several Russian songs. This choir will be dressed in the Russian native costume, and is well known to the Montreal public since it has given songs at many large rallies recently, at the Forum and elsewhere.

SUCCESS IN COLLEGE HINGES ON HOME LIFE.

Habits and motives that are acquired in the home play an important part in success or failure in college. That is one of the main conclusions of "What It Takes to Make Good in College," a pamphlet published by the Public Affairs Committee, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York.

Prepared by Samuel L. Hamilton, professor of education at New York University, the pamphlet summarizes the findings of "From School to College," a study in transition experience made in 40 typical men's colleges under the supervision of the Yale University Department of Religious Education.

It finds that college "success," as distinguished from the mere getting of grades, is dependent chiefly on four characteristics—purpose, social adjustment, ability to make decisions, and sensitivity. Students having these four characteristics made the grade without difficulty. Those lacking in all four were, as a rule, flunked out by the middle of their first year.

Although these characteristics were found to be affected by many things, home influences were seen as particularly important. Good relationships with parents, brothers and sisters were found to be important for success. Those who found that their parents were moderately interested in their affairs, rather than indifefrent or oversolicitous, were the best-adjusted group in college.

"A curious indication of good home adjustment," the pamphlet points out, "is a liking for the subject of English. Narrow reading interests seemed to go with poor home adjustment, whether reading was limited to newspapers only, to books and magazines only, or to newspapers and magazines only."

High achievement is personality also seemed usually to carry with it high achievement in other areas. In light of this it is interesting to note that "frequency of attendance at movies—seven or more times a month — was a sign of poor personality, as was also frequency of indulgence in card games. 'Bull sessions' were again a kind of thermometer, the better-adjusted boys being the ones who participated in the large session and the less well adjusted in sessions with very small groups. Continued association with parents, relatives and friends was a good sign, as was the keeping up of former friends, especially through occasional dances and parties." A few of the other "tips" to success shown in the study are listed. For example, "The student has a better chance to make good if he:

Safeguards his health;

Participates in athletics, even if he never makes a varsity team;

Has occasional 'dates';

Keeps up a satisfactory religious worship not inconsistent with his science and philosophy;

Lives on the campus;

Studies as many hours daily as are required to finish assignments;

Learns how to make and keep a schedule of work, reading, recreation, exercise, and rest;

Makes his own decisions promptly;

Seeks competent advice without becoming overdependent upon it.

—Queens.

Annual Photographs

The following graduating students are expected to have their pictures taken at Jacoby Studios, 1541 Crescent Street Wednesday, for publication in the Annual. They will be taken at any time from 9.30 a.m. to 6.30 p.m. without appointment, except Saturdays. Appointments for sittings at other hours, if necessary, may be made by phoning PL. 1075 for an appointment.

The price, $2.25 (or $2.75 if a finished portrait is desired), is payable at time of sitting.

NOTE—The names of several graduating students have unfortunately been omitted from these published lists. This is regrettable but nonetheless unavoidable. These lists are obtained from the Registrar's Office and are thus the best available.

All graduating students should have their photographs taken. The lists which are published serve as a guide, indicating to the student which day he should go to the Studios. Any student whose name is not on the list, yet is graduating this year, should have his picture taken at the same time as the rest of his class.
